5 The raven himself is hoarse
That croaks the fatal entrance of Duncan
Under my battlements. Come, you spirits
That tend on mortal thoughts, unsex me here,
And fill me from the crown to the toe topfull
Of direst cruelty; make thick my blood,
Stop up th'access and passage to remorse
That no compunctious visitings of nature
Shake my fell purpose nor keep peace between 10 Th'effect and it. Come to my woman's breasts,
And take my milk for gall, you murd'ring ministers,
Wherever in your sightless substances
You wait on nature's mischief. Come, thick night,
And pall thee in the dunnest smoke of hell,
That my keen knife see not the wound it makes

To cry 'Hold, hold!'

William Shakespeare

Remember, a good response (Level 4 or higher) will always refer to my ideas.

'Macbeth' the play is a product of my imagination. The characters are things I have created. Do not treat them as real people.

To do well you need to think about the decisions I have made while writing the play and explain these ideas in your essay.

EXAMPLE PARAGRAPHS

Example Level 4 paragraph

Lady Macbeth describes Duncan's entrance as 'fatal' straight after hearing he will be coming to her castle, which shows power because she is capable of making instant decisions. Lady Macbeth's language in this extract suggests that she is calling for power from evil spirits to help give her strength to carry out the murder of Duncan. She wants to get rid of her feminine side: 'come to my woman's breasts and take my milk for gall'. It is as if she thinks that she will only be able to carry out the act if her female side is replaced with 'gall' – something poisonous and evil. By using imperatives such as 'come' and 'take' Shakespeare might be showing her to be a powerful woman, capable of selling her soul to get what she wants. Later in the play she no longer appears powerful as she is overcome by guilt which makes her hallucinate.

Example Level 5 paragraph

Lady Macbeth describes Duncan's entrance as 'fatal' straight after hearing he will be coming to her castle, which shows power because she is capable of making instant decisions. The adjective 'fatal' also suggests death which means that she has decided what to do: Duncan is certain to die. Lady Macbeth's language in this extract suggests she wants to get rid of her feminine (good) side in order to give her strength to carry out the murder of Duncan. She commands evil spirits to 'come to my woman's breasts and take my milk for gall'. By using imperatives such as 'come' and 'take' Shakespeare might be showing her to be a powerful woman, capable of selling her soul to get what she wants. Alternatively, the use of imperatives may also suggest her desperation and highlight the fact that, as a woman, she feels weak. In this case, Shakespeare might be implying that women were naturally 'good' and that their 'milk' makes them maternal and caring. Given her psychological demise at the end of the play where Shakespeare shows Lady Macbeth hallucinating, this argument can be easily supported. By the end of the play she highlights her weakness. Lady Macbeth describes her own hand as 'little' a word that suggests weakness and vulnerability. At this time, attitudes towards women were conflicted. While Shakespeare had lived under a strong, female monarch, Elizabeth I, many believed that women were unfit to lead and in fact had a disruptive effect.

Example Level 6 paragraph

Shakespeare clearly wants to show Lady Macbeth as a conflicted character. She is driven and ambitious and is willing to commit regicide to get what she wants. However, she also struggles with a guilty conscience and is ultimately psychologically broken by her remorse. At the start of the play she defies the contemporary fear of witchcraft and calls on evil spirits to 'unsex me here' and 'take my milk for gall'. On the one hand, Shakespeare's use of imperatives highlights her strength and determination. On the other, they illustrate a desperation in the character. This need to change herself and remove the caring, maternal 'milk' may in fact foreshadow her inability to 'stop up th'access and passage to remorse.' Although Lady Macbeth may be presented as strong and a key catalyst for Duncan's death at the start of the play, by the end she is weak and overcome by guilt. She seems to be admitting this vulnerability when she imagines seeing blood on her 'little' hand in Act 5, Scene 1. Ultimately, Shakespeare is presenting a character who cannot free herself from Christian guilt, even with the help of the supernatural. She may be powerful, but she is not free of remorse and this is her downfall.

Read the following extract from Act 1, Scene 3 and then answer the question that follows.

At this point in the play Macbeth and Banquo have just spoken with the Witches. Macbeth has been told he will be King.

MACBETH(aside)

*Two truths are told,
As happy prologues to the swelling act
Of the imperial theme. (to ROSS and ANGUS) I thank you, gentlemen.
(aside) This supernatural soliciting
Cannot be ill, cannot be good. If ill,
Why hath it given me earnest of success,
Commencing in a truth? I am thane of Cawdor.
If good, why do I yield to that suggestion
Whose horrid image doth unfix my hair
And make my seated heart knock at my ribs,
Against the use of nature? Present fears
Are less than horrible imaginings.
My thought, whose murder yet is but fantastical,
Shakes so my single state of man
That function is smothered in surmise,
And nothing is but what is not.*

LADY MACBETH

*Yet do I fear thy nature;
It is too full o' th' milk of human kindness
To catch the nearest way: thou wouldst be great,
Art not without ambition, but without
The illness should attend it. What thou wouldst highly,
That wouldst thou holily; wouldst not play false,
And yet wouldst wrongly win. Thou'ld'st have, great Glamis,
That which cries, "Thus thou must do," if thou have it,
And that which rather thou dost fear to do,
Than wishest should be undone. Hie thee hither,
That I may pour my spirits in thine ear
And chastise with the valor of my tongue
All that impedes thee from the golden round,
Which fate and metaphysical aid doth seem
To have thee crowned withal.*

MACBETH

*If it were done when 'tis done, then 'twere well
It were done quickly. If the assassination
Could trammel up the consequence, and catch
With his surcease success; that but this blow
Might be the be-all and the end-all here,
But here, upon this bank and shoal of time,
We'd jump the life to come. But in these cases
We still have judgment here, that we but teach
Bloody instructions, which, being taught, return
To plague th' inventor: this even-handed justice
Commends the ingredients of our poisoned chalice
To our own lips. He's here in double trust:
First, as I am his kinsman and his subject,
Strong both against the deed; then, as his host,
Who should against his murderer shut the door,
Not bear the knife myself. Besides, this Duncan
Hath borne his faculties so meek, hath been
So clear in his great office, that his virtues
Will plead like angels, trumpet-tongued, against
The deep damnation of his taking-off;*

LADY MACBETH

*Was the hope drunk
Wherein you dressed yourself? Hath it slept since?
And wakes it now, to look so green and pale
At what it did so freely? From this time
Such I account thy love. Art thou afeard
To be the same in thine own act and valor
As thou art in desire? Wouldst thou have that
Which thou esteem'st the ornament of life,
And live a coward in thine own esteem,
Letting "I dare not" wait upon "I would,"
Like the poor cat i' th' adage?*

Who dares do more is none.*

MACBETH

*Is this a dagger which I see before me,
The handle toward my hand? Come, let me clutch thee.
I have thee not, and yet I see thee still.
Art thou not, fatal vision, sensible
To feeling as to sight? Or art thou but
A dagger of the mind, a false creation,
Proceeding from the heat-oppresèd brain?
I see thee yet, in form as palpable
As this which now I draw.
Thou marshall'st me the way that I was going,
And such an instrument I was to use.
Mine eyes are made the fools o' th' other senses,
Or else worth all the rest. I see thee still,
And on thy blade and dudgeon gouts of blood,
Which was not so before.*

LADY MACBETH

*Who was it that thus cried? Why, worthy thane,
You do unbend your noble strength to think
So brainsickly of things. Go get some water,
And wash this filthy witness from your hand.
Why did you bring these daggers from the place?
They must lie there. Go carry them and smear
The sleepy grooms with blood.*

F

MACBETH

*I'll go no more:
I am afraid to think what I have done;
Look on 't again I dare not.*

LADY MACBETH

*Infirm of purpose!
Give me the daggers. The sleeping and the dead
Are but as pictures. 'Tis the eye of childhood
That fears a painted devil. If he do bleed,
I'll gild the faces of the grooms withal,
For it must seem their guilt.*

G

MACBETH

He chid the sisters

*When first they put the name of king upon me
And bade them speak to him. Then, prophetlike,
They hailed him father to a line of kings.
Upon my head they placed a fruitless crown
And put a barren scepter in my grip,
Thence to be wrenched with an unlineal hand,
No son of mine succeeding. If 't be so,
For Banquo's issue have I filed my mind;
For them the gracious Duncan have I murdered;
Put rancors in the vessel of my peace
Only for them; and mine eternal jewel
Given to the common enemy of man,
To make them kings, the seed of Banquo kings!
Rather than so, come fate into the list,
And champion me to th' utterance.*

*We have scorched the snake, not killed it.
She'll close and be herself whilst our poor malice
Remains in danger of her former tooth.
But let the frame of things disjoint, both the worlds suffer,
Ere we will eat our meal in fear, and sleep
In the affliction of these terrible dreams
That shake us nightly. Better be with the dead,
Whom we, to gain our peace, have sent to peace,
Than on the torture of the mind to lie
In restless ecstasy. Duncan is in his grave.
After life's fitful fever he sleeps well.
Treason has done his worst; nor steel nor poison,
Malice domestic, foreign levy, nothing
Can touch him further.*

LADY MACBETH: (aside to MACBETH) Are you a man?

MACBETH: Ay, and a bold one, that dare look on that
Which might appall the devil.

LADY MACBETH : O proper stuff!
This is the very painting of your fear.
This is the air-drawn dagger which you said
Led you to Duncan. Oh, these flaws and starts,
Impostors to true fear, would well become
A woman's story at a winter's fire,
Authorized by her grandam. Shame itself!
Why do you make such faces? When all's done,
You look but on a stool.

MACBETH : Prithee, see there! Behold! Look! Lo! How say you?
Why, what care I? If thou canst nod, speak too.
If charnel houses and our graves must send
Those that we bury back, our monuments
Shall be the maws of kites.

Howe'er you come to know it—answer me.
Though you untie the winds and let them fight
Against the churches, though the yeasty waves
Confound and swallow navigation up,
Though bladed corn be lodged and trees blown down,
Though castles topple on their warders' heads,

Even till destruction sicken, answer me

His mansion and his titles in a place
From whence himself does fly? He loves us not;
He wants the natural touch. For the poor wren,

Her young ones in her nest, against the owl.

LADY MACBETH

Yet here's a spot.

DOCTOR

Hark! She speaks. I will set down what comes from her, to satisfy my remembrance the more strongly.

LADY MACBETH

Out, damned spot! Out, I say!—One, two. Why, then, 'tis time to do 't. Hell is murky!—Fie, my lord, fie! A soldier, and afeard? What need we fear who knows it, when none can call our power to account?—Yet who would have thought the old man to have had so much blood in him.

DOCTOR

Do you mark that?

LADY MACBETH

The thane of Fife had a wife. Where is she now?—What, will these hands ne'er be clean?—No more o' that, my lord, no more o' that. You mar all with this starting.

Tomorrow, and tomorrow, and tomorrow,
Creeps in this petty pace from day to day

And all our yesterdays have lighted fools
The way to dusty death. Out, out, brief candle!

Tell thee, Macduff was from his mother's womb
Untimely ripped.*

For it hath cowed my better part of man!
And be these juggling fiends no more believed,
That palter with us in a double sense,
That keep the word of promise to our ear,
And break it to our hope. I'll not fight with thee.*

MACDUFF *Then yield thee, coward,
And live to be the show and gaze o' th' time.
We'll have thee, as our rarer monsters are,
Painted on a pole, and underwrit,
"Here may you see the tyrant."*

MACBETH *I will not yield,
To kiss the ground before young Malcolm's feet,
And to be baited with the rabble's curse.
Though Birnam Wood be come to Dunsinane,
And thou opposed, being of no woman born,
